Radio days; theater nights

Ansky hints that if he's not happy with his new show, slated for September on Army Radio, he will move to another station. (DAVID RUBINGER)

Alex Ansky may have been bumped temporarily from morning radio in the push for more news programming, but he's still going strong on stage. He's currently playing the title role of the Haifa Theater production of "The Uncle From Cape Town."

By Michael Ajzenstadt

Glass, which recently concluded a highly successful run at the Cameri. That role was yet another proof of that old cliché that there are no small roles in the theater," says Ansky, who notes that during the production he is on stage for just nine minutes, but that's enough time to cause the protagonist to have a heart attack. "Miller had some problems in writing this play, but the role is a masterpiece."

In spite of the fact that I'm only on stage for nine minutes, I have a man's heart attack. In his latest role, Ansky is on stage for considerably more than nine minutes. He is a sort of... in "The Uncle From Cape Town," he plays the role of Edna Mazia.

changing his life entirely. These lottery tickets are like adrenalin. It's hope, it's a chance for something better. And in spite of the ongoing disappointments, you still have the power to continue with this throughout your life."

Ansky adds: "People enjoy living in the fantasy that the real love of their life is still to happen, that one day they will walk in the street, see someone, and bingo - they will know that this is it."

"The Uncle From Cape Town is a play about a yearning that does not materialize. It's like waiting for Godot, but this time Godot does arrive and no one seems to be ready for his arrival."

In this case the hope for change is so big that nobody can actually wait for it to happen, and so they do a terrible thing to the uncle in order to make their hopes come true."

ANSKY IS full of compliments for the young playwright who made a name for herself with Games in the Backyard, a semi-documentary based on the Shomrat rape case. "The way she treats this family and the situations in this play are extreme. The audience laughs, but it is laughing at the absurdity of it all."

Ansky also praises director Kotler, who has "created a sort of a black comedy about very miserable people who simply have nothing, ugly people with debts and with no future who suddenly, in a moment, seem to see the light."

Not that the protagonist is an angel himself. "This uncle is a human being like everyone else. He uses all the weaknesses of these people in an extreme way as well."

Ansky enjoyed working on an original script with the playwright right there in the rehearsal room.

"Mazia was very open to the work of the actors. After all, the actors understand the play in the best way because they live and breathe it. She listened to us and provided new lines and new scenes in an instant when needed."

Ansky began his career as a child actor in Habimah and the Cameri. Theater buffs may still remember him from his work with the Actors' Stage (Barnat Hasakharim) in the late '60s.

In 1970 he traveled on a grant to New York, where he studied for several years at the RCA radio and television school. "When I returned I began working in Galei Tzahal, and ever since, I have continued both acting and broadcasting."

"Ansky will return to Galei Tzahal in the fall. "We don't know yet how the new morning show will look, but it will continue in September. If I don't like the new format, there is a huge radio boom in the country these days. And anything is possible."

Filmmaker Menahem Golan has turned to musical theater in his first local project since coming back here to live.

By Helen Kaye

"The pop film is dead here because the scripts are chosen by committee," says Golan. (JONATHAN BLOOM)

Down from Golan's heights

"I'll run for at least two years," a confident Menahem Golan tells the wide-eyed Maria wannabe at the auditions for The Sound of Music. Two days later the choice is made, but the lucky woman's name will only be revealed in a blaze of publicity at the end of the month.

That's Golan. Part canny huckster, he parlayed a failed independent movie company, Cannon, into the sixth-largest film company in the world.

Part savvy showman, the schlock and action movies he made like Delta Force and his Ninja series financed the European art films that won him awards at prestigious festivals.

Part bad boy (there are stories of his temper tantrums with stars, none substantiated), and all Israeli, Golan has returned home for good. The Sound of Music, the Rogers and Hammerstein musical that Julie Andrews made into a film legend, will be the calling card that says "I'm back."

"Why not Sound of Music?" he asks. "It's timeless. Besides, I love the genre. I always have. The first show I did after I came back from studying directing in London was The Palmira Game. It was a huge hit."

At 66, there's no sign of the skinny boy who grew up in Tiberias. He's thickset with curly, somewhat disheveled graying hair. The eyes have that slightly opaque look that blue-gray eyes get with age, and he walks as though his feet hurt.

He's unpretentious, natural, spontaneous. Shirli, his eldest granddaughter, walks shyly in and is engulfed into a joyous, energetic hug. She's into film at her high school. Grandfather is going back to Minsk in Belarus to work on the second of three movies he's making there back to back.

"Why don't you come in August?" he asks suddenly, and it's all settled in a minute, but not before he has pointed out that she'll need a visa. That's the way he works: in a mixture of spontaneity and obsessive attention to detail.

Born Menahem Globus, he was stagestruck from the beginning. He helped the stage hands set up when the repertory theaters came to town, and they'd let him watch from the wings.

He was the class cutup, the clown whom his English teacher flunked on his Shakespeare test even though he told me I was the best at demonstrating Shakespeare in class. I knew the plays by heart."

At 13 he was running the town's adult drama group.

HE CHANGED his name to Golan in 1948, when the War of Independence broke out, because a Hebrew name was patriotic. He fought in that war, and it's a source of pride to Golan that he was Moshe Dayan's radioman for a while.

After the war he begged a letter to the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art from Yosef Millo, then director of the Cameri, and arrived in London penniless. LAMDA took him and a year later he got a scholarship to study at the Old Vic.

At 22 he returned and quickly made a name for himself as a theater director. At 28, "I was at the top of my profession, the most sought-after director in Israel, and suddenly it bored me. I thought of all those American movies I'd watched as a kid and I felt the need to expand, to go to film because the possibilities are so much greater. It was an instinctive move. Yes, you could say it was a new world to conquer."

He took the family - there were two daughters by then; today there are three, as well as four grandchildren - and went to study film at New York University. In the US he crewed for the school master Roger Corman along with another movie hopeful, Francis Ford Coppola.

Eldorado, starring Topol and Gila Almagor, was the first film Golan directed. The first film he produced was Sallah. It sold more than a million tickets and was nominated for Best Foreign Film at the Academy Awards. That was in 1962, and Golan established Noah Films (named after his father) to produce it.

The rest, as they say, is history. Golan made a string of successful and crowd-oriented movies here, including the Lemon Popsicle series. In 1978 he and his cousin

Yoram Globus went to Hollywood because "it was the Mecca of film, and like all good Israelis I went to Mecca."

They bought Cannon and, until Golan separated from Globus and Cannon in a very public, very acrimonious breakup of 1989, the cousins set Hollywood on its ears. During their tenure, Cannon made some 250 movies. Golan worked with some of the most famous movie names in the world and made some distinguished movies alongside the mass-market films that were Cannon's bread and butter.

Fons Rademakers' The Assault won the 1988 Oscar and Golden Globe for Best Foreign Language Film. The Runaway Train, directed by Andrei Konchalovsky, got three Oscar nominations that same year and John Cassavetes' Love Stream won the Golden Bear at Berlin.

THE LIST of stars fills a fat file ranging from action heroes like Chuck Norris and Claude Van Damme (whom he discovered) to actors such as Faye Dunaway, Jon Voight, and Katharine Hepburn, whose 1984 performance in The Ultimate Solution of Grace Quigley won her a prize at Montreal.

And always there were the Israeli films or films with a Jewish subject, like Isaac Bashevis Singer's The Magician of Lublin, or Operation Thunderbolt about the rescue at Entebbe. He says that he made at least two films a year here in Cannon's heyday, and that he's been trying, without much success, to get the Israeli film establishment to "back films the public wants to see."

"You can't have a national film industry without support, and the pop film is dead here because the scripts are chosen by committee and they choose pretentious, arty stuff."

"I hope that the $50-million fund that [Trade and Industry Minister] Micha Harish wants will come to pass. Then we can make 30 films a year here."

When he parted from Cannon and Globus in 1989, Golan sold them all his interests in the company, including the movie theaters here and the studios GG

(the Israeli arm of Cannon) had built in Nevech Ilan near Jerusalem.

For five years the cousins communicated only through lawyers; then Golan's sister effected a peace.

"Today our relationships are correct. We meet and there's mutual respect, but the emotional divide is too great for us ever to be as we were. And anyway, you can't return to the past."

Strangers made mischief between them, he says, and then admits "that I made mistakes, but there it is. I want to stress that I don't owe anyone a cent, and I'm not rich, but the girls all have their own apartments."

He came home "because, somehow, I've had enough of America. I was always homesick, even when I lived there. The girls didn't like it there and the family came back long before I did. That's why I never minded what they wrote about me there, but here it was different. This is my home. My family lives here and I want them to be proud of me."

Not that he'll be here that much. He has a new New York-based film company called International Dynamic Pictures. Two of those three Minsk pictures are action flicks, one of them about the 1981 raid on the nuclear reactor in Iraq. The third is called Jackpot and stars Peter Onorato as the thief whom Marianne (Baghdad Cafe) Sagebrecht wins along with $10 million. Next year he plans to film A.B. Yehoshua's best-selling Return from India.

Rehearsals for The Sound of Music start in October. It will open December 14 at the Cinerama in Tel Aviv and is booked into the Tel Aviv Performing Arts Center at Pessah.

"The stage will become part of his life again, but film will always remain No. 1 because my imagination works overtime. I want to live more than my life, 15 times at least, and film does that for me, my cinema dreams on screen give me another life. I'm so happy with life that I want another one."

Adina Hoffman

 THE ADVENTURES OF PRISCILLA, QUEEN OF THE DESERT - Stephen Elliott's film is a delightful chronicle of a gay Sydney cabaret act's journey across the Australian wilderness. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 AMATEUR - Fresh and affectionate, Hal Hartley's film takes shape with the out-of-body vision of one of the pornographic stories written by Isabelle (Isabelle Huppert), a freckle-faced ex-nun who claims to be both a nymphomaniac and a virgin. Perhaps the most typical character in Hartley's weird menagerie, Isabelle swaps enigmatic one-liners here with a genial amnesiac and a naive porno star. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 BEFORE SUNRISE - Two beautiful strangers meet on a train from Budapest. He's American and must catch a plane for home at dawn; she's French and heading back to her studies at the Sorbonne. On a whim, he persuades her to disembark in Vienna and spend the night wandering with him throughout the stately city. Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy are the modern sweethearts. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 BLUE SKY - There's an inevitable quality to Jessica Lange's great performance as a frustrated army wife in the late Tony Richardson's final film. Part Blanche Dubois, part Marilyn Monroe, Lange's Carley is always on the edge of some hot emotion. While her frequent outbursts and the flirtatious apologies that invariably follow dictate the film's manic shape, it's really her husband's (Tommy Lee Jones's) silent suffering over time that gives the picture weight. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 BOYS ON THE SIDE - Three pretty women (Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker and Drew Barrymore) drive across the country. Along the way they laugh, hug, cry, reveal their deepest hopes and fears and paint each other's toenails. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

 1/2 THE BROWNING VER-SION - Albert Finney and Grete Soscil star as the Crocker-Harrises, whose conjugal sorrow is meant to follow loosely the outline of Aeschylus's The Agamemnon. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

 CRIMSON TIDE - The drama's primary setting is the interior of an American nuclear submarine, where the crusty captain (Gene Hackman) and his thoughtful young second-in-command (Denzel Washington) vie for control of the crew and the deadly warheads. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

 DEATH AND THE MAIDEN - The most interesting bad movie of the year, Roman Polanski's film is based on Chilean exile Ariel Dorfman's nervous chamber drama about a victim of police torture (Sigourney Weaver) who confronts the man (Ben Kingsley) she believes raped and brutalized her, years before. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 DIE HARD WITH A VENGEANCE - Balding wise guy Bruce Willis is upstaged once and for all in his third turn as scrappy police detective John McClane. And it's not costars Jeremy Irons or Samuel L. Jackson who grab attention from Willis. No, the real focus of John McClane's movie is without a doubt New York City, which quickly announces itself to be much more than the picture's backdrop. From the first shot, of a powerful bomb blast at Bonwit Teller, the city gives the film its plot, its nervous momentum and, for at least the first hour or so, its surprisingly mordant wit. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 DUMB AND DUMBER - Though it's hard to make claims for the subtlety of a film whose jokes center around such stuff as extra-strength laxatives and dead parakeets, the creators of this Jim Carrey vehicle at least grasp the concept of irony. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

 1/2 ED WOOD - Tim Burton's movie is designed for buffs of catastrophe, eccentricity and Edward D. Wood Jr., the man considered by many to be the worst film director of all time. This black-and-white biopic glorifies Wood's badness itself, holding it up as evidence of his creative gusto. With Johnny Depp hamming absurdly as Wood and Martin Landau as a poignantly doped-up Bella Lugosi. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

 1/2 JUST CAUSE - With its characters, situation and Southern-gothic setting on loan from high-moral standbys like To Kill a Mockingbird and Intruder in the Dust, the first half of this Arne Glimcher movie tells the straight-ahead story of a poor young black man, accused of a crime he did not commit. The second half is about something else altogether. Starring Nadine (Mary Kate Schellhardt) and Jesse (Jason James Richter) share a moment by the cove in 'Free Willy 2,' opening nationwide.

Sean Connery and Lawrence Fishburne. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 LEGENDS OF THE FALL - A sprawling family saga set on a ranch in Montana around the time of the First World War. Three brothers - among them, homey surfer boy Brad Pitt - share a woman, several battles, many accidents, deaths and shoot-outs. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 LIFETIMES - Director Zhang (Raise the Red Lanterns) Yimou's most ambitious movie to date traces the lives of a simple family as they're rammed from one historical event to the next. (Mandarin dialogue, English and Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 THE MADNESS OF KING GEORGE - Director Nicholas Hytner, writer Alan Bennett and star Nigel Hawthorne are reunited for the clever film adaptation of their clever National Theatre play, The Madness of George III. Situated somewhere between Shakespeare's histories and the muckraking News of the World, the movie bounces along at a purposeful clip, all the time insisting on the shocking nature of its ironic title. On the whole, the team has done a more-than-respectable job of unpacking the play for the screen, though not everyone may share their conviction that the diminishment of the king's mental faculties is really so earth-shattering. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

 MURDER IN THE FIRST - After three years in solitary confinement, an Alcatraz prisoner (Kevin Bacon) stabs a fellow inmate to death. He seems a shoe-in for the gas chamber until a cocky young lawyer (Christian Slater) decides to put the prison itself on trial for torture. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 MURIEL'S WEDDING - Good will be what's missing from Australian director P.J. Hogan's writing/directing debut. A broad comedy about an ugly duckling who transforms herself into a swan by fantasizing about other people's wedding dresses and listening compulsively to ABBA songs, the film is meant to be charming. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

 OUTBREAK - Dustin Hoffman stomps and fumes as a principled army doctor determined to beat a killer virus. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 POCAHONTAS - Ostensibly based on a true story, Walt Disney's latest animated musical is set at the beginning of the 17th century. It tells the tale of a pretty young Native American woman who falls in love with John Smith, an English settler to Jamestown, Virginia. As the two get to know each other better, they attempt to mediate between their different cultural backgrounds. Good intentions aside, the film is saccharine and annoying. (The movie exists in two versions: one with English dialogue and Hebrew subtitles; one with Hebrew dialogue. General audiences.)

 ROB ROY - Along with the biographical nitty-gritty that screenwriter Alan Sharp has dutifully, and often floridly, transcribed from the real life of Scottish folk hero Robert Roy MacGregor, a random sampling of inspirational truisms are also on hand to spice things up a bit. These approximate how Scarlett O'Hara might have sounded if she'd spoken with a brogue, traded in her hoopskirt for a tartan kilt, and been played by Liam Neeson. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without an adult.)

 1/2 THE SHAWSHANK REDEMPTION - This deliberate picture about suffering and belief is set almost entirely within the gray confines of a maximum-security jail. Watching it, one begins to comprehend more fully the notion of hard labor. Starring Tim Robbins and Morgan Freeman. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

 STARGATE - Ronald Emmerich's Variation on a Theme by George Lucas is so slack, so drab, so utterly devoid of meaning and inspiration, that active attempts to block the film's unique particulars are unnecessary. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

 WHILE YOU WERE SLEEPING - In Jon Turteltaub's emphatically upbeat film, Sandra Bullock stars as a lonely transit worker who saves her crush (Peter Gallagher) from an oncoming train and then, while he's in a coma, falls in love with his brother (Bill Pullman). The film does have its occasional sweetness, though this is sweat on the greeting-card level. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

CHANNEL SURFING

TV and the hype that got out of hand

Penny Starr

Local TV has been hyping the Arad Festival all week. It's been an excuse for the Family Channel to fill airtime with local video clips.

It's been a pretext for the Children's Channel's cute little skits about being festival cool, as defined by the Arad preparation course taught by 12-year-old bead sellers and hair braiders from the desert town.

No wonder teens swarmed to Arad. No wonder there was a rush on Mashina's final concert.

But it's shocking and sickening that two youths should die in the crush and that 150 should be injured.

The first stories coming out of Arad blamed the police, who didn't understand or control the surging crowd. The organizers will also surely have to take some of the blame for not anticipating it.

The TV stations will be sitting back and saying they were just promoting the festival for the organizers, and that the tragedy has nothing to do with them.

The festival is a big deal, and many between the ages of 13 and 20 look forward to it all year. I'm not sure you can blame TV for taking advantage of the young viewers' excitement.

But at a time when the children's programs make such a politically correct fuss about being sensible in the sun and wearing a cycle helmet and looking before you cross the road, it would be nice if they could control their urge to whip teen viewers into a frenzy for the sake of ratings.

LOOKING BACK, it made the Cameri Quintet's hippie sketch seem kind of eerie.

In this Tuesday's show, the final one of the season, there was a spoof of the Poem at Bedtime Channel 2 puts on late at night. A reader comes out in black turtleneck and jacket and recites in Hebrew a poem that goes "This is the end, my friend."

And in the background a hippie couple plays the Doors' song with the same words.

They seem to be wearing the same tie-dyed vests and beads and Lennon glasses that Elnat

Ehrlich of the Children's Channel was wearing in her festi-cool clothes.

There was another moment of black humor when two of the Quintet pretend to be Israelis visiting Bosnia. They are the Israeli delegation to show solidarity. "Everywhere you find suffering, you find the Jew," they say, and take turns taking snapshots of themselves smiling while squatting next to a wounded man who is crying out, "The pain! The pain!"

WHICH REMINDS me: Fantasy Island is back (Star Plus, 9:30 a.m., Saturday). Remember little Tattoo shouting to Ricardo Montalban about the arrival of the next group of paradise seekers? What do you want, the fancy version or ...

The plain, the plain! The show seems so dated now, like a landlubbers' Love Boat. But Star Plus insists on bringing us corny old shows like Batman. We also get corny new shows like Tales of the Gold Monkey, set in Bora Bora, where Indiana Jones meets Raymond Chandler.

Then there's Beverly Hills 90210 on Star Plus. From the beginning, when they all had different haircuts. As if we didn't get enough of the new season on Channels 3 and 6.

This week in the new series everyone was lying. In fact it was a week when people were lying all over the TV. When Valerie moved out of the Walshes' house she said, "Thanks for everything.... I mean that." And you just knew she didn't. When Brandon said Kelly had probably just gone to pick up some bagels, Claire replied, "Yeah ... for sure."

It was like saying, "I was nowhere near the scene of the crime, I was at the movies, yeah, that's right, the movies."

That's more or less what Newman ("Helloooo Nnnnnnewman") said about Kramer on Seinfeld on Tuesday night (Channel 3, 11:20 p.m.). "Kramer was pissed off about ... the keys, yeah, that's right, the keys. So ... he split for the coast, La-La Land - L.A."

(Oh, don't act so surprised. Of course you've seen it before. It's

Children's Channel presenters have been adding to the hot-air quotient on the tube recently. (YOSSI ZVIKER)

the reruns. The nightly dose. The reason to bid an early good-night to your friends so you can get home by 11:20 p.m. The Seinfeld repeats have put both routine and joy back into our lives. All over the country there must have been a rush on videocassettes as people tape every episode so they can remember the lines.)

Jerry also told a little white one in the new season's episode on Monday (Channel 3, 10:15 p.m.). But he couldn't beat the polygraph. Under pressure he cracked and confessed that, OK, he did watch Melrose Place. (All you Melrose fans can feel better about yourselves; you're in good company.)

But that's just sitcom fiction. Even more lying was going on in real life. It's the latest Hollywood craze: celebrity lying. All the top people seem to be doing it, you know. There's any number of them in the OJ trial. There was Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie saying they have sex. There was Hugh Grant reprising his burning Four Weddings and a Funeral character pretending that the Jay Leno interview was unplanned and unrehearsed and he just happened to come up with the "blow my own trumpet" line.

And then this week came Kevin Costner. In an interview on Entertainment Tonight (Star Plus, Tuesday, 4:30 p.m.), he said he's not worried about his new movie Waterworld running over budget and over schedule. He doesn't think it's a risk.

"If risk is an emotion, then it's one I've never had," he blustered. He's not upset about the breakup of his 15-year marriage to Cindy. Yeah, right, Kevin. Everyone seems to be getting acting lessons in damage control from their legal advisers.

Ment Pe'er wasn't lying in Night Studio (Channel 1, Sunday, 9 p.m.). He really did get to interview Moshe Rabenu. We all saw it in his show about people's names this week. Moshe Rabenu was a smiley gray-haired man.

He was sitting close to the triplets Am, Yisrael and Hal. (Poor boys, they must always have to sit in the same order.) They were not far from the Beduin who changed his name from Mahmud Abusharem to Ben-Adam Universal (Universal Man).

Honest. It's true. Yeah, that's right. I was home watching the show. For sure. And I mean that.
